To Jefferson Forest

Raiders lose 2nd

The Raider varsity baseball team lost a make-up game Monday to Jefferson Forest, after defeating Buckingham Friday. The score in both games was 6-1.

Tim Bennett went the distance Friday against Buckingham for his fifth win of the season. He allowed four hits, struck out four and walked two enroute to the victory.

The Raiders took the lead in the second inning, after Bennett walked, stole second base, and Allen Edmonds singled.

In the third inning, the Raiders added two more. Ken Caldwell led off with a double, M. J. House bunted for a single, Keith Mann drove in one with a double, and Jody Williams drove in House with a single, after House had stolen second base.

The Raiders added three in the fifth inning, when Keith Mann walked, stole second base, then scored on an error. Williams reached base on that same error, then was driven home on a Gary Ferguson home run.

Coach Howard Clabough noted that the Raiders "got good pitching, good defense, and adequate hitting (nine hits total) in their win over Buckingham."

It was a different story Monday afternoon against Jefferson Forest, however.

"It was our worst game of the year, defensively and offensively," Clabough said.

The Raiders' only run in the 6-1 defeat came in the second inning on a triple by Ken Caldwell, who then scored on a ground out by pitcher Kevin Mitchell.

Caldwell's triple and a double by Gary Ferguson were the only two hits of the game for the Raiders, however.

Jefferson Forest scored two runs in the first inning, on two errors by the Raiders which "set the stage for the rest of the game...We never really recovered from those first two mistakes," according to Clabough.

In all, the Raiders committed five errors in the game, their second loss of the season.

Kevin Mitchell, who started on the mound, "didn't do that bad a job of pitching," the coach noted. "It was a faculty defense that led to the loss," the coach concluded.

While Monday's loss was only the second of the season for the Raiders, it counted in the district-standings record and left Appomattox with a 4-2 district record as of Monday.

"This means that there will be a real scramble to get into the district tournament," Clabough noted.

The top four teams in the final district standings are allowed into the Seminole District Tournament, and as of Monday, there was a three-way tie for second place, with Appomattox, Brookvill e and Nelson County all sporting 4-2 records. And, Rustburg was close behind with a 3-3 record.

The Raiders, who were scheduled to play Brookville Tuesday after the Times-Virginian deadline, will have to face off against Nelson County Friday, and will play Rustburg next Tuesday.

Friday's game is away, and Tuesday's game will be played at Appomattox.

Softball team victories roll on

The Raiderette softball team continued its winning ways last week, defeating Jefferson Forest 19-5 Wednesday, and Buckingham 14-10 Friday.

The wins bring the Raiderettes' overall record to 11-2, and raise their district record to 6-0.

The Raiderettes capitalized on nine hits, ten walks and 15 stolen bases to score Wednesday's 19-5 victory against Jefferson Forest.

Defensively, the Raiderettes committed ten errors, but winning pitcher Angie Murray allowed only four hits in the game.

Excelling offensively were Janet Thomas (a double, three stolen bases and three RBIs), Jacquetta Booker (a triple, three stolen bases and three RBIs), and Kim Carter, with two RBIs, a stolen base and a home run.

Friday's game against Buckingham was a tougher contest for the Raiderettes, who finally prevailed, 14-10.

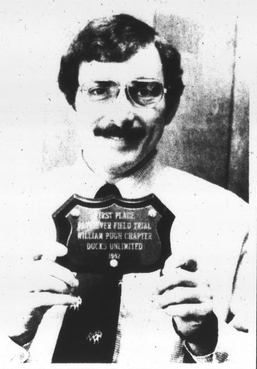
The Raiderettes led in the first three innings, but the Lady Knights came back in the fourth inning to tie the score, 7-7. In the fifth inning, however, the Raiderettes exploded for five runs, including four off a grand-slam home run by Lolita Preston. The Raiderettes added two more runs in the last inning for their 14-run total.

The Raiderettes had 10 hits against Buckingham, including a home run by Lolita Preston and doubles by Carter and Thomas. The Raiderettes also had a good day on the base paths, with Robin Paulette recording four stolen bases, Booker three, and Preston and Thomas two each.

Preston led the RBI department with five, followed by Marsha Cheatham and Booker with two each.

The win was credited to Diane Jones, who came on in the fifth inning with the score tied at seven, and held Buckingham to three runs off of four singles and three walks.

"This was a fired up and much improved Buckingham team we faced," noted Coach Mary Tolley after the game. Tolley noted that Buckingham had defeated previously unbeaten Rustburg 16-6 the day before they played Appomattox.



WILLIAM R. BRITTON, JR. (BILL), is shown with the plaque he received as first place winner in the Retriever Field Trial, William Pugh Chapter, Ducks Unlimited for 1982. The second annual Ducks Unlimited Gun Dog Trials were held in Lynchburg at the New London Airport Lake on April 25. This is the first time an Appomattox member has taken home the first-place trophy. The dog was Renus, owned by Hank Miller of Richmond and handled by Britton. "This will be held again next year," commented Britton, "and we hope there'll be more participation from Appomattox and we hope there will me more people interested in Ducks Unlimited and what it does to preserve wild life habitats." AMS news

Don't forget Friday, May 7, from 5:30 - 8:30 p.m. will be PTA Activity Night at AMS. Come on out and join in the fun!

On April 22, 1982, the Appomattox Junior Chapter Future Homemakers of America held its annual Parent-Member Banquet in the AMS cafeteria. A delicious buffet was catered by John Mosby Inn and entertainment was provided by Melody Reflection - a ladies' barbershop style quartet from Lynchburg. The 1981-82 officers conducted a ceremony to install the new officers for 1982-83 who are: president-Dana Lee, vice presidents-Jennifer Schmutz and Monica Stratton, secretary-Annette Turner, treasurer-Robin Miller, reporter-Danielle Moore, historian-Wendy Lawson, chaplain-Angelia Jaggars and recreation leader-Laura Carter. The Federation reporter-Lara McGrath will be installed at a meeting of the Campbell-Appomattox Federation this month.

FHA officers and members worked on fund raising projects during the school year to make this banquet possible. It was greatly enjoyed by all who attended.

Eight grade Home Economics students are presently studying a unit on Child Development and Child Care. As part of the unit they participated in an experiment on being a responsible parent. The purpose of the experiment was to give the students an appreciation of the sacrifices of time and freedom involved in being a parent and the responsible attitude needed to safeguard a small child.

Each student took on the role of "parent" to a helpless "infant", which was represented by a fragile egg. For one week, each "parent" had to protect and care for his or her "baby". Students showed great enthusiasm as they created protective "cribs" to carry the eggs in, chose names, gave their "baby's" faces, hair and, in some cases, clothes and toys. Students made positive comments about the activity, such as "This was a project that will help us be good parents someday," "It taught us that you must be sure you are ready to be tied-down and work hard before you decide to have a child," "It was a fun and educational project."

Other activities included in this unit are writing a story for a young child and observing young children's behavior.

On Tuesday, April 27 the Appomattox Middle School Art Club and Art Gifted and Talented members participated in a field trip to Longwood College in Farmville, Virginia.

The A.M.S. students viewed the annual Junior Art Show in the Bedford Building Gallary of Longwood's Art Deaprtment. Mr. Homer Springer, an art education teacher and painting teacher at Longwood for 13 years, talked to the 7th and 8th graders about careers in art, admissions to colleges with art as a degree, as well as the scholarships and funds available to students. Mr. Springer guided for the AMS group through some of the classrooms and gave hints and procedures for doing some of the art on display. The students enjoyed walking through and viewing the ceramics classes, painting, graphics, fibers, advertising, water color, silk screening, batik and the art education classrooms.

Mrs. Beth Reynolds and Mrs. Margaret Neathery, art teachers at AMS were assisted in accompanying the group along with Mrs. Margaret Lockner, a parent of a seventh grade student in the Art Club.

USDA issues interim rules for nonquota tobacco grown in quota states - The U. S. Department of Agriculture has issued interim rules under which USDA will, with certain exceptions, consider nonquota tobacco produced in a quota state as quota tobacco.

According to Everett Rank, Administrator of USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, the interim rules implement provisions of the Agriculture and Food Act of 1981.

If marketing quotas are in effect in a state for more than one kind of quota tobacco, nonquota tobacco produced in the state would count against the quota for the quota tobacco produced in the state with the highest price support level, Rank said.

There is an exception to this rule, Rank said. Producers of nonquota tobacco grown in a quota state may request USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service to inspect their tobacco to determine whether it is "readily and distinguishably different" from all kinds of quota tobacco. If the Agricultural Marketing Service determines the tobacco is "readily and distinguishably different", the tobacco will not be subject to marketing quotas.

Quota tobacco is produced in Alabama, Arkansas, Connecticut, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Missouri, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

Details of the interim rule appear in the March 12 Federal Register.

Comments regarding the interim rule should be sent to James M. Davis, Director, Tobacco and Peanut Division, Room 5750-S, USDA-ASCS, P. O. Box 2415, Washington, D.C. 20013. Comments should be received not later than May 11 to be assured of consideration and will be available for public inspection in the office of the Director.

Conversations with a corn field - Corn fields are not all ears. Take a careful, observing walk through your corn field, and it may tell you many things about your soil fertility practices. Start your conversational walks in the Spring as the corn emerges. Every few weeks, repeat your strolls up until harvest time. There are some things you may learn.

Early in the growing season, when the corn in about knee high, purple-tinted leaves may be telling you that the growing plant needs phosphorus. As the season progresses, the development of small, weak, spindly stalks further indicates a lack of phosphorus. At harvest time, the presence of small, twisted ears with part or entire rows of kernels missing is the final evidence of poor phosphorus nutrition.

Another nutritional problem may be signaled to you during your mid-season strolls. Pale green leaves say, "I need nitrogen." The call gets louder as the leaves begin to yellow, starting at the leaf tip and proceeding along the midrib in a "V" fashion. Small ear development, pinched on the top, with poor kernel filling confirms the lack of nitrogen.

Potassium deficiency also cries out clearly. In mid-season, corn leaf edges "fire" and turn brown. The area along the midrib is green. Eventually, the entire leaf turns brown and dies. The last cry for potassium is the production of chaffy nubbins with dull-colored kernels.

During the season, the corn plant may call out for other help. Be on the alert for all of the above signs. This, often, is a special signal for lime. The plant is telling you that the soil is too acid.

Confirm all that you have observed in the growing plant. Test the soil to determine lime and fertilizer needs.

Acreage Reports - June 1 is less than 1 month away now and it is an important date for barley, wheat and oat producers to remember. This is the final day to report acreages for the above crops.

Participants in the wheat and feed grain program need to report these acreages in order to remain in the program. Producers that have acreage bases and are not enrolled in the program need to report so that they can be eligible for history credit. Producers that do not have acreage bases are asked to report to that they can have acreage bases established for future program purposes.

Corn, grain, sorghum and tobacco acreages need to be reported by June 30, however, these acreages can be reported if they are planted at the same time wheat, barley and oat acreages are reported.

Volunteers to be honored

School volunteers are invited to attend a coffee in their honor on May 10, from 9:30 - 10:30 in the school cafeteria.

If you have volunteered your time, energy, baking skills (room mothers), and expertise in any way to benefit the students of the Appomattox Primary School this year, then this coffee is for you!

Come by so we may have the opportunity to thank you properly for all the services provided to our school. We hope to brainstorm other ideas for involving parents and community in the life of APS students.
